Theatre Without Walls provide a memorable learning experience using award winning techniques. We provide key expertise & work with your existing HR training infrastructure to create effective and repeatable programmes tailored specifically to your needs. We aren't an agency and only use a small dedicated team of actors and facilitators. Programmes which utilise Theatre Without Walls are always involving and are consistently praised by participants as being the highlight of their training.

Roleplay

With our actors life can have a rehearsal. We can be your competition, an important client, your customers or a difficult member of staff. Use our experienced actors to role-play problems find solutions to them or to practice almost any situation in advance. Theatre Without Walls create engaging and useful role-plays. HR departments and training organisations use us several ways, either in the creation of new training workshops in a presentational / conference style which can include large groups for staff training or in smaller surgeries for management or board level facilitation.

Conference Services

Theatre Without Walls can offer experienced conference hosts to make your event run smoothly. Innovative options include awards ceremony style events to encourage and congratulate staff on their achievements. We can turn conferences into an engaging talk-show where an interviewer draws out the points which can put inexperienced speakers at ease or allow directors to address delegates from a more natural position. We can manage all or part of a live event. We can even create embedded multi-media content and help with media conferencing.

Other services

Speech writing: Work with a professional writer to hone your speech, create effective soundbites, make memorable points which get your message across.

Voice coaching: Work with an actor or director in 1-1 or small group surgeries with pointers on key skills to help you deliver engaging speeches confidently and clearly.

Forum Theatre

Forum Theatre is designed to highlight specific issues or problems in order to find solutions to them. To begin with delegates watch a short sketch, which is embedded with discussion points and difficulties to be dealt with at every turn. The piece is then played again but this time the delegates with the help of a facilitator take an active role, stopping and changing the play when a better course of action could have been employed.

By re-working the play in this way, delegates can fix each point in turn and as they do so, issues can be debated, ideas shared & solutions explored. Forum unearths issues, which can then be discussed more thoroughly in smaller breakout groups & through role-play.

A Healthy Workplace Initiative Know Your Mind

This forum theatre production deals with Stress issues at work and is equally suited for staff mental health and wellbeing centred initiatives.

The play takes the form of a sit-com and although light hearted on the surface the audience can all too easily identify with the characters and situations depicted in the play.

'Know Your Mind' was developed in association with Gloucestershire County Council to help identify stress triggers & to try to find ways in which these situations can be alleviated or better still, averted.

Respect Anti-bullying

A forum production, choose either:

1. Email and text bullying
2. Mutual Respect
3. Staff Bullying

This workshop aims to prevent bullying from happening and to highlight issues which organisations want to address. It aids assessment of bullying awareness within organisations and raises issues in an interactive and accessible way. We provides an open forum where staff and management can contribute advice and together tackle this difficult issue. Originally developed to launch the south west pilot 'anti-bullying accreditation scheme'.

Need to address a staff or training issue?

These are only a few of our forum options. Existing packages deal with effective communication, workplace bullying, health, wellbeing & community engagement.

Theatre Without Walls can create workshops, roleplays and forum productions on almost any issue. We also run media skills based training and provide opportunities for staff development on our community projects.
